Art Classes & Art Therapy

Art Therapy has demonstrated real progress in using art to peek interest and provide a low barrier to entry in the expression of feelings, without using language. This can be especially effective helping younger children, older adults and children on the autism spectrum, who may be less capable and/or less comfortable expressing themselves via words. Similarly, participation in art class stimulates the temperal lobe in the brain, which remains intact longer during Alzheimer's and dementia. Artistic expression through color and imagery allows people to express their feelings.

Dance & Movement Therapy

FAM's board certified dance & movement therapist, guides individuals of all ages through musical movements that encourage self-expression, enhance energy levels, improve coordination, alleviate stress, uplift mood, and promote overall health and well-being. FAM also offers Movement & Music Sessions, which have similar goals, but are not implemented by a certified therapist.

FAMbots
A social robot (Hugo, Migo, or Misty) leads a small class with discussions, games, art activities, books, while a human teacher assists. Perfect for the early learner, primary school students, and particularly effective for children on the autism spectrum. And loads of fun!!

Multi-Sensory Sessions

We have discovered that we must meet memory care patients where they are and accompany them on their journey. We introduced a Multi-Sensory experience that integrates aroma therapy, music, a sensory covering (resembling an activity blanket, but with memory-triggering themes), and a social robot. These activities promote “in-the-moment” involvement and deliver numerous benefits.

ART2GO

ART2GO's primary objective is to mitigate social isolation and loneliness experienced by the elderly and older adults by offering creative expression opportunities accessible to all, fostering feelings of acceptance, connectedness, and purpose. Our ultimate aim is to establish a generational bridge between older adults and youth populations, with the latter facilitating the classes.
